Becoming The Nation's Best Loved Caf

London, 22nd of August 2005, about 2.30pm. It's five years into the new Millennium – nobody has ever sent a tweet, avocado on toast is not a thing and James Blunt is telling everyone they're 'beautiful'

On a Soho side road called D'Arblay Street in London, a small, family owned, egg yolk yellow caf appeared. A teeny island oasis away from the wonderful mayhem and chaos of Soho.

The plan - well, kind of plan - a place that was about more than just the food and drink you put in your belly but the way it made you feel. A 'today is going to be a good day' start to your day in a place you want to take your friends.

Years later, The Breakfast Club is still family owned, it's still very much a caf, and the plan is still the plan. Good food and drink for all, served with a warm, arms wide open welcome.

Welcome to The Breakfast Club Gatwick.

Sincerely yours,
The Breakfast Club
